Beyond Fiction announced

Molehill Productions

Feature-length documentary following the unbelievable story behind Sam Jackson's Secret Video Diary

Molehill Productions are in post-production with Beyond Fiction, their second film. It tracks the production of a TV comedy drama promo and its tragic derailment, and how the material eventually evolved into the British Independent Film Award nominated Sam Jackson's Secret Video Diary.

The film offers intimate access right from the very beginning of the process in 2001, through casting the TV promo and shooting with Posy Miller, who played Sam Jackson. In December 2002, Posy suddenly fell ill, and died aged 31 of acute leukemia. Beyond Fiction reveals the agonising aftermath of the tragedy, and how it was decided to posthumously make a new film with Posy in the leading role – the first time, it is believed, that anything like this has been attempted.

The film follows writer / director / producer Guy Rowland through every stage of production, together with co-producers Deborah Garrett and Chris Healey. Featuring many of Posy's friends cast in the final film and members of her family, Beyond Fiction chronicles the love and pain that are at the heart of a film that BBC Online called "impactful... heartfelt and courageous".
